When life's autumn comes, women, worn out by the burdens of motherhood, shrink from that second "change of life" which will banish them in feature, in personal attractiveness. Such a change is largely the effect which this change produces, and no woman need let those fears fret her. Those who have used it, say, "It is a Favorite Prescription, do not suffer from the change of life, in face, form or feelings as do other women. This fact is due to the unique connection of the general health with the health of the organs especially the heart. By preserving the health of these organs, and relieving the system from the debilitating drains, ulcers and inflammations, the Favorite Prescription leaves the way for this natural change to come in Nature's way, without the loss of capacity to please others or to feel natural to either."

"For Favorite Prescription," begins the safety through that difficult period, called "change of life," writes Mrs. Mary E. Thompson, of New York, in the Woman's Home Journal. "This change made a very unpleasant disturbance through my entire system, and had me in bed for weeks. I have been excited, irascible, nervous and irritable. My appetite was bad and for days I was unable to sleep. I was so nervous I recommended me to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and I am much better. Within two weeks the unpleasants feelings had disappeared. I have a husband and two children, and I am a good mother, but was able to attend to my household duties without any difficulty and pleasure. The Favorite Prescription has been a great blessing to me. I can recommend your Favorite Prescription as a good medicine."

You may be willing that somebody else shall say that their baby is "just as good" as yours, but you don't want that baby substituted for yours. We desire to say what we can about other prescriptions being "just as good" but don't let them substitute anything for "Favorite Prescription." It is absolutely unequal.

"SAVED MY LIFE"

That's what a prominent druggist said of Scott's Emulsion a short time ago. As a rule we don't use or refer to testimonials in addressing the public, but the above remark and similar expressions are made so often in connection with Scott's Emulsion that they are worthy of occasional note. From infancy to old age Scott's Emulsion offers a reliable means of remedying improper and weak development, restoring lost flesh and vitality, and repairing waste. The action of Scott's Emulsion is no more of a secret than the composition of the Emulsion itself. What it does it does through nourishment—the kind of nourishment that cannot be obtained in ordinary food. The system is too weak or delicate to retain Scott's Emulsion and gather good from it.

We will send you a sample free.

See that pictures in the form of a label on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

"Nothing More to Pay"

That's what he said and further, he (Mr. Ebe Walter, of Clarksville Del.) said this:

"The outdoor work on the crops of the year is generally wound up in November. The prudent farmer will get his corn gathered before the snow comes. Wheat sowing in all the Southern States should be ended by the end of the month. All vegetables should be stored in cellars or put up under cover in the fields. Hogs should be slaughtered the first cold spell of weather that may come the latter part of the month. Tobacco in the barns should be taken down before the advent of freezing weather.

Shelters for stock during the coming winter should be provided. When lumber is scarce and dear good shelter for cattle and sheep may be made by the use of wheat straw. A triple row of forks eight feet apart may be set in the ground to the depth of two feet, the middle row being four feet higher than the outside rows, may be connected longitudinally by round poles. From the outside poles, rails or other poles should be placed at intervals of one foot resting upon this center pole so as to make rafters. The north end should be enclosed by setting rails or poles on one end in the ground, letting the tops of such rails or poles even with the top of the shed forming the gable end and tied with twine. The structure should have upright posts set in the ground on the sides at intervals of 18 inches and securely tied to prevent the straw, which should form the sides, from bulging out over the floor, and yet permit the cattle to get to it. The whole structure should then be enveloped entirely with wheat straw top and sides, leaving the southern end only open. The outside row of forks need not project above ground more than five feet. Cattle and sheep having access to such a shelter will be securely housed against the cold winds of winter and can feed upon straw between regular feedings. This cheap structure is suggested not because it is the best or most suitable or desirable, but because it is what every farmer who raises wheat may build with his own force without the expenditure of any money whatever, and it may be constructed 25 feet long and 16 feet wide in two or three days with two good hands.

Heavy clayey soils will be beautified by plowing them in November. All manure in the stables and all that has accumulated around the horse lots and cow pens ought to be spread before the plowing.
